22 the surviving students of the high school have organized to 23 speak out against gun violence in schools and have become

25 school gun violence; they have taken their impassioned pleas 26 for school safety to adults in leadership and authority in

1 government, including the State Capitol in Florida and the 2 Capitol of the United States; and

3 WHEREAS, the voices of these students, who have 4 experienced gun violence and trauma at school, seek respectful
5 conversations with legislators and congressmen and are being 6 heard on media across the country and the world; the students
7 emphasize that they are not seeking disruptive protests or 8 attempting to start arguments and fights; they emphasize that 9 they are simply demanding that lawmakers listen and take 10 immediate action to prevent future school shootings by making
11 tighter regulations to prevent gun violence and address 12 related mental health issues; and

13 WHEREAS, rallying for lawmakers to make new laws, 14 the students are posing tough questions to the adults in 15 charge; their efforts are organized and focused to demand 16 action to seek solutions to end school gun violence; and

17 WHEREAS, the role played by these outstanding 18 students in calling for action is proudly recognized and 19 respected; we extend our admiration to these exceptional 20 students for their exemplary actions seeking involvement of
